❏ In fact, the government has noticed this problem. Therefore, the government provides subsidies and free garbage bags to the low-income group to offset the side effect on income inequality.

❏ The cause of the environmental problem is because individuals only consider their marginal private benefit and marginal private cost, which makes the problem of overproduction exist. ($MSC > MPC$)

❏ On the other hand, being more environmentally friendly could also enhance the living standards of people in the world and promote sustainable development, which may create a positive externality.

We are currently doing too little in this regard!

The intervention of the government reminds us to bear the responsibility for the living of the next generation. We should fulfill our commitment to future generations.
